

ASAIL Publications

ASAIL, the Association for the Study of American Indian Literatures, was founded in 1971; between 1973 and 1975 at least five issues of an “ASAIL Newsletter,” ranging between 1 and 8 pages long, were published.

SAIL Series 1 (1977-87)

The Newsletter of the Association for the Study of American Indian Literatures, "New Series," commenced regular publication with its volume 1, no. 1, Spring 1977 issue. The title gradually changed to become Studies in American Indian Literatures (SAIL) in the Winter 1980 issue (4.1). SAIL "New Series" ceased independent publication with 11.2 (Spring 1987) at which time SAIL was temporarily adopted by The Dispatch, the Newsletter of the Center for American Cultural Studies, Columbia University, which included three articles published on behalf of the Association: an interview with Karl Kroeber, Editor in Chief of SAIL between 1977 and 1987 (6.1, Fall 1987), excerpts from Larry Evers and Felipe Molina's Yaqui Deer Songs (6.2, Spring 1988), and a tribute to the University of Washington Press (6.3, Summer 1988).
